

Dr. Ausie Nkhi-Godana

Dr. Ausie Nkhi-Godana is a dedicated public health professional with a strong academic background and leadership skills. She holds an MBChB with a distinction in Obstetrics and Gynaecology from the University of Cape Town, a Master's in Business Leadership from UNISA, and a Master's in Public Health from Sefako Makgatho University. Dr. Nkhi-Godana has been involved in various initiatives aimed at reducing cervical cancer incidence, including the NDoH's Mother-Daughter campaign and voluntary male medical circumcision as part of HIV and STI prevention. She is also an active member of several professional committees and has been involved in training healthcare professionals and community members on the importance of HPV vaccination and regular screenings. Dr. Nkhi-Godana's commitment extends beyond direct healthcare provision; she is an active member of several professional committees and has been involved in community engagement projects to raise awareness about health issues and cervical cancer screening.